Profile Summary

I'm Laxman Gurav, A motivated BSC Computer science graduate with a strong interest in software development and building real-world applications. I enjoy solving problems through code and continuously improving my technical skills to stay aligned with industry trends

I'm currently pursuing MSC Computer science and seeking opportunities where I can contribute, learn and grow as a full stack developer.

Academic projects

CAREPLUS

CarePlus is a MERN stack healthcare management system where patients can book appointments, doctors can manage them, and admins control the system. I worked on both frontend and backend, built APIs, and used MongoDB for data storage.

PETCURE

PetCure is a MERN stack-based animal healthcare and rescue platform designed to simplify pet care and improve accessibility to veterinary services. The application allows users to book appointments, find nearby veterinary clinics using map integration, upload and read blogs, and manage their pet care journey efficiently. This project helped me strengthen my skills in full-stack development, authentication using JWT, API integration, and building real-world scalable applications.
